Reflecting on a life saved

MWRA official fields pointed questions

by Jeff Nazzaro
Massachusetts Water Resource Authority (MWRA) Executive Director Douglas B. MacDonald took the stand, so to speak, at Monday's board of selectmen meeting, to answer questions from Wilmington officials and citizens regarding what many in the town believe to be unfair sewer assessments.

The appointment was initiated by Selectman Diane Allan, who stressed the need for "An education working towards equitable rate relief."

Wilmington has only 600 homes and 60 businesses connected to the MWRA's sewer system. As a result, those residents and industries are forced to pay high percentages towards the MWRA's $3.5 billion Boston Harbor clean-up project.

The project, outlined in a slide presentation by MacDonald, is scheduled to open its new sewage treatment plant on Deer Island by August of next year. The entire operation is slated for completion sometime in 1999, MacDonald said.

Meanwhile, Wilmington residents are paying well over the $545 per year average - with some paying close to twice that amount yearly for MWRA service.

Acting Selectmen Chairman Robert Cain hit MacDonald with the idea Wilmington may leave the MWRA, stating "I want you to know how serious we are."

MacDonald, appearing flustered for the first time during the nearly two hour proceedings, responded by saying "I don't want Wilmington to leave...and it's not just because of the money."

Wilmington residents and businesses currently provide the MWRA with $1.3 million annually.

Following the discussion with MacDonald, the board of selectmen, meeting publicly with the board of water and sewer commissioners, entertained MWRA alternatives, including the construction of a town-financed sewage treatment plant.

Legion given warning

by Jeff Nazzaro
On the recommendation of Police Chief Bobby N. Stewart, the Wilmington Board of Selectmen have agreed to send a strong warning to the Wilmington American Legion Hall for negligently serving alcoholic beverages to minors.

The selectmen, which serve as the town's licensing authority, acted on the basis of a memorandum to Town Manager Michael Cairn from Stewart, summarizing a report by Sgt. Chris Neville and Officer Michael Begonis which indicated two 19-year-old male patrons were served "several beers while at a bachelor's party at the American Legion, on September 18."

The complaint was the first of its kind received against the American Legion, since that organization received its function hall license.

Teenager makes life-saving decision

A son survives every parent's nightmare

by Jeff Nazzaro

Wilmington youngster Michael Donato survived a harrowing experience because of the presence of mind displayed by his father, Joseph, the heroics of a local teenager and a $20 configuration of plastic and foam.

The scene early last Friday night came fresh out of any suburban parent's nightmare: seven-year-old Michael left his driveway on his bicycle, turned onto the sidewalk, and then, without looking first, maneuvered on to the quiet, dead-end of Patch's Pond Lane, where he lives. Michael, according to his parents, was then struck by the car, thrown from his bicycle and trapped under the mid-sized sedan.

"Thirty seconds after he left the house," Michael's father Joseph recalled of the horrifying sound of screeching brakes, "I knew it was him."

The elder Donato rushed into the street where his son lay pinned and crying for help under the front-end of the car. In desperation, the father lifted the car by its front bumper "off its springs," twice. On the second occasion, 16-year-old Jennifer Fantigrossi, who had witnessed the accident from Chestnut Street, pulled Michael out from under the still-running car.

"She came out of nowhere," Donato said of the Shawsheen Tech junior. Michael's mother, Kathi Donato, added that Jennifer, who has taken two first-aid classes, "made a quick decision" in approaching the scene and extricating Michael from beneath the vehicle.

"From the end of [Patch's Pond Lane, at the corner of Chestnut Street,] his head looked like it got run over with the tire," Fantigrossi recalled.

Fantigrossi, whom the Donatos credit, along with the helmet, for saving their son's life, then held and comforted Michael, while the elder Donato checked for serious injuries. A scant minute and one half later, Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) Linda Giles and Gary Robichaud of the Wilmington Fire Department were on the scene.

Michael was taken to Winchester Hospital and released approximately four hours later with a few missing teeth, various cuts, bruises, abrasions and a valuable lesson: "Always wear a helmet and always look before going out into a street," he said afterwards.

The helmet itself, comprised of an inside of foam protected by a plastic shell, was cracked and split into many pieces - a frightening image when one considers the aftermath of such an accident on the unprotected human head.

"We want people to realize that it really did save his life," Kathi Donato said, displaying the battered helmet. "If it wasn't for this helmet, it would have been his head bouncing around in there." "The helmets do save lives," Joe Donato emphasized. Michael lost three teeth - one permanent - in the accident, but, his father said, "After what we went through...we can live with that."

Rule that saved a life

The Donato rule: No helmet, no ride

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Donato family of Wilmington have a rule for their household that 10-year-old daughter Nicole is happy to relay: "If you don't wear your helmet you won't be allowed to ride your bike," she says.

The insistence on wearing a helmet effectively saved the life of the Donato's seven-year-old son, Michael. The reality of the accident and the potential harm that could have resulted to Michael has hit home among many children in the area around the Donato's Patch's Pond home. Several of Michael's friends now wear helmets when bicycle riding.

The accident also served to diffuse perceptions regarding helmets among slightly older kids.

Nicole, a fifth grader at the Shawsheen School, said of wearing a helmet, "A lot of my friends teased me, but I showed them the [damaged] helmet and a lot of them are getting them."

The realization that the mangled plastic shell and broken foam core could have been her brother's head had a profound effect on the Wilmington family - an effect the Donato's want to impress upon everyone.

Each year in the United States, 15,000 youngsters die as a result of accidents, with an additional 50,000 permanently disabled. The majority of these accidents are bicycle-related, and a large proportion of those injuries or deaths could be prevented through the use of a protective helmet.

While children's bicycle helmets cost around $20, assistance is available, from among others, pediatricians, in selecting and purchasing the potentially life-saving devices.

West Intermediate open house was well attended

The Open House held last Thursday evening at Wilmington's West Intermediate School was extremely well attended by over 200 hundred interested and enthusiastic parents. Presentations by each teacher were designed to inform parents about new curriculum and schedule changes for the upcoming year. Additionally, parents met all staff members inquired about school programs, activities, upcoming events, and received information about the importance of the School Reform Act, School Councils and home/school communications.

Students Melissa Alonardo, Ben

DeGennaro and Christian Ferraro were busy selling 1993-94 Yearbook gift certificates in the school lobby. These certificates make very good gifts for students who enjoy the popular yearbook. Parents and students are encouraged to order early from Mr. Spriggs or

Mrs. Schellenbach. Important upcoming dates to remember:

Station Square gets sign

by Jeff Nazzaro

After a lengthy debate, the Wilmington Board of Selectmen voted unanimously Monday to approve the erection of a sign by local businessman John J. Elia at Station Square, near the corner where Middlesex Avenue meets Jefferson Road.

The sign will be placed on land owned by Elia in which the "Town of Wilmington has an interest," i.e. an easement, according to both town officials and Attorney John Callan, representing Elia.

The sign will advertise businesses located in Station Square on Middlesex Avenue.

The board passed the motion on conditions that Elia pay a $1 fee, take out a $500 insurance policy in case of accident involving the sign and re-stripe the mall parking lot. The decision was also made contingent upon the approval of town counsel.

It's YOUR Money

BY JOYCE BRISBOIS
Certified Public Accountant

WHAT WILL YOU GET FROM SOCIAL SECURITY?

Men and women workers, their spouses, widows and widowers all depend on Social Security benefits to pay at least part of the way through retirement. Women, especially, need it because they live longer.

Smart move: even if you're nowhere near retirement age, check your account. Call 800-772-1213 and request an application for a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement. If the report is in error, challenge it. Check the records every three years at least.

Those born before 1938 can get full benefits at age 65; for others, retirement age starts inching up to 67. You can get partial benefits at 62, but the payments are reduced for life. Widows or divorced widows can start collecting at 60.

In years past, women were less likely to work or to earn high salaries, so most widows today find that 100 percent of her husband's benefits is more than her own would be; indeed, some women find that even the 50 percent spouse benefit is higher than their own benefits. Remember that 50 percent of benefits may be taxable depending on total income; new tax laws may make 85 percent of benefits taxable.

How does Social Security fit into your financial future? Talk it over with the professionals at

Truth, justice and another victim of the process

by Rick Cooke
Town Crier Editor

Another media feeding frenzy is roaring in Wilmington. This town more closely resembles David Lynch's version of Twin Peaks if you believe everything that is written in every newspaper column from here to Bangor, Maine.

Little more than a week ago a 13-year-old alleged criminal, a special needs student, was charged by Wilmington police with rape of a child, indecent assault and battery, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and threatening to commit murder of a seven-year-old second grade student in an incident that supposedly took place on the same street where both youngsters reside. The story was reported on the front page of the Town Crier's Wilmington edition.

Since the charges have been reported, the 13-year-old was bailed for $25,000 in Woburn District Court Thursday and ordered to return for a hearing in that same court October 7.

Francis P. Cullen, the presiding judge of the Woburn District Court, has since been the target of anger expressed by the relatives and the friends of the seven-year-old alleged victim who do not feel the boy should have been bailed and sent home with his parents while undergoing court-ordered psychiatric examination. Currently, an evaluation of the youth is being conducted on an out-patient basis by the division of Youth Services under the supervision of the Court Probation Department.

There are several problems here that need to be discussed. Judge Cullen is not the personification of evil in this case. He is simply stuck with a judicial system that is as obsolete as the Slinky and the Hula-Hoop. The law gave him no choice but to accept the bail and wait for the hearing while the boy is tutored at home.

The boy in this case should not have been sent home until the October 7 hearing however, and here is where the law slaps the alleged victim in this case right smack in her young face. This young lady will grow up in a hurry once she gets a good look at what our judicial system has done with her case even in its early stages. Instead of remaining neighbors with the alleged victim, the boy, who supposedly has been a problem in this neighborhood before, should have been held by the DYS and evaluated until the October 7 hearing. But, the law doesn't allow that, and the public and Judge Cullen are stuck with the law's stupidity. By speaking out on this issue and explaining the reason for bail in this matter, Cullen has automatically disqualified himself from any further proceedings on this case.

That being said, naturally the alleged victim's parents have decided to try this case in the press, which is exactly what most normal, loving, feeling, logical thinking people would do when our judicial mess rears its ugly boot and kicks them in the teeth.

So, the press, talk shows and most media hounds run right down to the scene of the alleged incident and begin the process of what I call "interviewing for a column that espouses a point of view." Who can get there first, and who can get there and do it with a better angle that might provide readers with more 'insight' into the alleged incident.

Nonsense. These columnists and reporters could care less about the alleged criminal and the alleged victim. I know because I am one of them, and it's times like these that make me stop and think... and gag repeatedly. The press says that it will never print the names in this case, but let's give everyone enough column-driven clues over the past week that you would have to reside in Woonsocket not to be capable of piecing together the names and addresses of the people involved.

Has this process served either the alleged criminal or the alleged victim thus far? No, in my opinion, it has not. It has served a bunch of self-serving journalists, helped begin the trial via the press and provided a second grader with press clippings that will make this mess just that much harder for her to forget.

* Tewksbury Selectman Richard 'Pete' Hanson spoke in support of a motion by Selectman John 'Jay' Kelley to request the local Cable TV company to change the television music channel (MTV) to a premium, 'extra cost' channel in order to discourage local viewing of what Kelley termed "disgusting material".

Selectmens' raise merits a no-show

by Bill Conlon

Win some, lose some, and some you shouldn't show up for. Tewksbury voters got one of each Monday night at the Special Town Meeting.

The voters won an added measure of public safety by agreeing to fund a part-time assistant sanitarian for the health department. The board of health has been battling for years to get funding for such a position, and this week the voters finally agreed.

Public Health Director Tom Carbone is overloaded with work. He is charged with septic system inspections, restaurant and food-handler inspections, immunization clinics, and a host of additional duties that serve to protect the public health. He now has some help, and the extra pair of hands will not go to waste.

But the voters also lost one on Monday. The safety and health of the public is poorly served by gutting the fire department, and on Monday night the voters approved the finance committee's budget recommendation, which was far below the requested amount.

The Tewksbury Fire Department lost 18 staffers over the past few years, mainly through early retirements. Due to that lack of staffing, the town's newest piece of fire equipment, Ladder One, sits idle most of the time. The North Street station is closed, and the South station is open but hanging on a financial thread.

The town did approve $40,000 for the first year of a 5-year lease to own agreement on new fire truck, but additional staffing might become a growing problem as time goes by.

Fire Chief Tom Ryan said his department spent a lot on terminal leave for the employees he's lost, and that savings might allow him to hire two firefighters in early 1994. He asked for the funding to replace all 18 staffers, but that hope died early. Once again, Fire Chief Ryan will have to preside over a tight budget, in a town that continues to grow. Adding a half-dozen firefighters might allow the North Street fire station to reopen, and that would make a lot of people in North Tewksbury more comfortable, but it won't happen this fiscal year.

As for the one where the voters shouldn't have even showed up, did anybody think to amend Article 1, to keep the selectmen's pay level the same? A motion for indefinite postponement was made, but it went down in flames when it was learned that voting for the indefinite postponement would mean that none of the elected town officials would be paid. Facing the choices of no pay, or increasing the selectmen's salary by $1,000 per member, the voters agreed to the pay raise. Nobody offered an amendment? Amazing.

Redistricting update

by Jeff Nazzaro
Representative James Miceli (D-Wilmington) has offered an update on the House Redistricting Committee on-going task of reshaping the state's legislative districts.

The committee, which is chaired by Rep. Kevin O'Sullivan (D-Worcester), will hold public hearings beginning next week for the purpose of garnering input into their proceedings, Miceli said.

The hearing of interest to Tewksbury and Wilmington residents will take place Tuesday, October 12 and will be held at 7 p.m. in the cafe at Middlesex Community College on Merrimack Street in Lowell.

The committee is faced with forming 160 equal districts of 37,603 people. A five percent swing either way is allowed.

Miceli reaffirmed his desire to unite Wilmington and represent both that town and Tewksbury as one district.

"The ideal district would encompass all of Tewksbury and all of Wilmington," he said.

However, the veteran legislator conceded, the mathematical possibilities all but preclude that from happening. The combined population of the two towns, numbers 45,403 (Wilm.-18,141, Tewksbury-27,262) which exceeds the 39,483 state-mandated limit.

QUESTION: Why is it important for a business to have Credit Insurance?

ANSWER: How much would you collect from customers if you were unable to send out bills due to a loss or damage to your accounts receivable files? How would you know how much was owed to you and by whom? What do you do when all your accounts receivable files have been destroyed by fire? Nothing desperate I hope. You don't need to.

We can insure the collection of all the money owed to you with credit insurance. If a good percentage of profit is dependent on your customers paying your bills, it would be worthwhile to have it.

Job Resource Center in Wilmington Public Library

A Interim Job Resource Center for unemployed Wilmington residents will open next week in the upstairs conference room of Wilmington Memorial Library. According to Town Manager Michael Cairra, "People will have a place to work on the business of looking for employment. The Interim Job Resource Center provides a place to work on resumes and cover letters, as well as to brainstorm job hunting strategies with others." The Center is part of the Town's Small Cities Employment Assistance Program and is open to all Wilmington residents during regular library hours. Any resident wishing to use the center should attend an orientation session at the Center at 9:30 Monday morning, October 4. The Interim Job Resource Center will house the Town's Employment Assistance Program's Job Bank, a listing of job openings from DET and companies. Dick Gage, a former IBM employee and town resident, donated his computer so residents could compose cover letters and resumes, learn Wordperfect 5.1 or polish keyboard skills using a typing tutorial program. The computer is linked to a letter quality printer. Magazines and other employment reference materials are available at the center. Best of all, residents can take a quick run downstairs to the business Reference Section when they need to do company research. In addition to encouraging people to use the library's resources, Head Librarian Philip Meriam supported the Interim Job Resource Center because, "We wanted to give residents an opportunity to have a quiet place where they could meet and work."

The Town of Wilmington's Employment Assistance Program includes training opportunities, job listing, career assessment, group counseling, employment seminars, and referrals to other employment programs that can benefit Wilmington residents in their job search. For more information about the Small Cities Program, and the Job Resource Center or to register with the program (which is required of all participants) contact Cathy Beyer, Job Developer, or Glen Garber, Program Director at 658-6333 or 658-7228.

Better Business

Rocco's Restaurant, 193 Main St., Wilmington • 657-7361

Monday's in Wilmington just aren't the same anymore. They're better! Rocco's has Monday night football on their big screen TV's and a Pizza or Pasta deal that can't be beat. It's all you can eat pizza or pasta for only $4.50. It comes with salad, too! Beverages aren't included but that's OK because there's Bud or Miller Lite on tap for only $2.00 for a 16 oz. draft.

If music is your life, your life just got better! Rocco's has expanded the Karaoke to Thursday night, as well as Friday's. Pat Kasko and Dave Keenan run a great show and the local talent is amazing. Some of your friends and neighbors can really sing! Come in and try it yourself starting at 9:00 p.m. every Thursday and Friday.

Rocco's is located at the corner of Main St (Rt 38) and Shawsheen Ave (Rte 129) in Wilmington. The Karaoke is held in the impressive glassed in lower dining room.

Rocco's is boasting a new menu now-a-days. The traditional Italian cuisine has been enlarged. Some new dinners have been invented and many items from the "Old Country" have been revived. If you love "Italian", you'll love Rocco's.

Sanda Equipment Sales • 222 Andover St., Wilmington • (508) 694-9920

Being a dealer for a major manufacturer can be more fun than one might think. Sandy Ford is a John Deere dealer. He sells and lawn tractors, lawn mowers and the necessary accessories and fun. It's a family business, his wife Aurora and four children (ages 12, 9, 6 and 5) all have a part in it. The children love to wash and park the riding tractors outside for display. The tractor that "needs" the most driving always seems to go first.

Sandy has been amazed a few times by the company that backs him. A few weeks ago a customer came in looking for a part for a 25 year old Deere. Sandy looked it up and "By gosh - it was there!" "We had it shipped in overnight and the machine was running the next day!" When he asked if it was time for a new machine the customer replied, "Nope, it's still workin' fine."

"It's the service," Sandy says. "Making people happy about owning a John Deere." All the products from John Deere carry a 2 year warranty and Sandy insisted on a 2 year warranty from every manufacturer of the side line items he carries. The gas powered line trimmer, the chipper, or any other machine is covered for 2 years! He also boasts of the 30 day money back policy. If you're not satisfied with your John Deere, bring it back for a refund or replacement. No hassle.

Just for fun they carry toys. Model tractors and trucks and all. Some of your kids can ride and some that need a push and some you won't let them touch. John Deere makes a "Precision Classics" line of detailed antique replicas which sell for $150.00 new. Collectors snatch them up fast. The only one Sandy has in stock right now is a 1936 Model A John

Deere with a six row harrow attached. You've heard the ads on TV and radio about "Deere Season." Well, that's over now and it's time for service on your Deere. Free pick-up and delivery in Tewksbury and Wilmington makes it easy to keep your Deere in top shape. Call for prompt courteous service: (508) 694-9920

Neighborhood tries to regroup

by Jeff Nazzaro

Quarterback John Palmer dropped back and threw a perfect, air-borne spiral into the Sunday afternoon sun towards open receiver Warren Karl. But at the last minute, safety Sean Doyle leapt and broke up the play, drawing equal groans and cheers from the participants and spectators.

This isn't an NFL game-day highlight, but a day in the life of a neighborhood - the neighborhood around Marjorie Road. The residents of this road off Route 38 close to the Tewksbury line gathered for their fifth annual block party Saturday.

In addition to street football, there was plenty of food, pick-up basketball, running tots and chatting friends and neighbors.

"This is a remarkably close neighborhood," Connie Lee, who began the annual event five years ago when she moved to the area, said.

The block party came for the residents on and around Marjorie Road at a crucial time after last week's arrest involving an alleged attack on a young neighborhood girl. Many of the neighbors needed the familiarity of hot dogs, potato salad and touch football played in the street between telephone poles.

Many in what has always been a close knit neighborhood hope that events such as the one held last Saturday will help to restore faith in Marjorie Road and the people who live there.

UP CLOSE AND PERSONAL WITH ZEBRAS

No amount of picture, books or nature films can really prepare you for the sight of a herd of zebras dancing under the dizzying African sun, or for an up-close glimpse of a patch of giraffes batting their enormous eyes while snacking on treetops. Going on an African safari (to shoot pictures, not animals, of course!) can be the experience of a lifetime. Adventurers can choose to set their sights on any number of game parks, each with its own personality and animal specialties. In Kenya, for example, Amboseli is known for its huge herds of elephants, and the Samburu Game Reserve is renowned for its own species of giraffes and zebras. Lake Nakuru is home to gigantic flocks of pink flamingos.

An African safari is truly an adventure unlike any other. If you are ready for the "call of the wild," whether you want to rough it or travel in luxurious style, ALL AROUND TRAVEL can help you realize your dreams. We've got great ideas for travel and will help you find the trip that exactly "fits." We're here when you need us at 203 Jefferson Rd., N. Wilmington (Rt. 62), for a vacation, business travel planning, a incentive tour, or a last minute trip. Come see us Mon-Fri 9-5 and after hours by appointment 658-2313.

HINT: The cost of an African safari is often dramatically less from April 1 to June 30, during the rainy season.

Artists must apply by October 15

The Wilmington Council for the Arts has announced that new applications for the awarding of grants are now available with an October 15 deadline.

There has been a slight revision in local Cultural Council guidelines regarding the funding of scholarships. Individuals may no longer apply for scholarships. A review of these types of applications in the past few years revealed little or no public benefit component. However, organizations may continue to apply for scholarship funds and may award a scholarship to an individual. The organization must ensure a public benefit component from the scholarship recipient and must detail this information on the application form. This revision applies only to the funding of scholarships. The Wilmington Arts Council will continue supporting the work of individual artists/interpretive scientists.

PASS applications may be obtained by teachers at their school offices. Since its inception in 1986 over 350,000 school children in Massachusetts have attended music, dance and theater performances through the PASS program. However, the scope of the program has expanded. PASS funds may now be used to subsidize the cost of admission to programs in the arts, humanities, and interpretive sciences (including educational tours, exhibits, and performances). Applicants still need to select a PASS approved artist or organization from the Massachusetts Cultural Resources Directory. The maximum cost of tickets for PASS participants remains at $7 per student.

Applications must be typewritten and five (5) copies are to be submitted.

Because all funding has of necessity now been cut drastically, applicants should be aware of the importance of submitting fully and correctly filled out applications by Friday, October 15 deadline. All others will not be accepted.

These forms may be picked up at either the Town Hall or the Memorial Library. Please submit your application to the Wilmington Council for the Arts, Town Hall, Glen Road.

Out-of-town school busing voted

The October 6, 1983 edition of the Town Crier of Tewksbury noted that:

A funding request for a new police station was denied by the Federal Economic Development Administration (EDA).

A committee was formed to plan activities to celebrate the 250th anniversary of the town's incorporation which would take place December 24, 1984.

The school committee voted 3-2 to pay $45 per day, per bus to transport 68 students to St.

Augustine's School in Andover. The cost would be just under $16,000 a year, more than was paid under a contract awarded the previous spring.

School Committee Chairman Tom Cooke broke a 2-2 deadlock, thus allowing Superintendent of Schools John Wynn a $2036 yearly pay raise, bringing his total salary to $43,500.

Army National Guard Pvt. Thomas Fisher completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

Light bills should decrease

Winter rates for the Reading Municipal Light Department will be in effect from October 1, 1993 to May 31, 1994, according to Len Rucker, General Manager of the RMLD. As a result of this seasonal rate change, the average residential and commercial customer should see a decrease in their monthly electric bills of approximately 30 percent during these months when compared to summer bills.

The RMLD has a seasonal rate structure because electric usage on the RMLD's system is higher during the summer than in the winter. In addition, seasonal rates help the RMLD reduce summer electric usage to keep annual electric costs down.

"Summer rates are 30 percent higher than winter rates because summer demand is approximately 30 percent higher than winter demand," Manager Rucker said. "The RMLD buys its power in long term contracts and must meet its on the peak demand requirement set by the New England Power Pool (NEPOOL). These monthly peak demand requirements are based on the RMLD's annual peak demand as a percentage of NEPOOL's peak demand. The RMLD makes every effort to keep its annual (summer) peak demand low to minimize the annual purchased power costs."

The October RMLD bills will include additional information about seasonal rates and their function. Further information about any of the RMLD electric rates can be obtained by contacting the RMLD's Energy Services Division at (617) 944-1340.

Town Clock tells one time

The October 6, 1983 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Officials were inviting area residents to take part in the Regional Health Center's fifth anniversary celebration. During its five years in operation, the Center had administered to 65,000 patients.

Warren Newhouse was scheduled to appear on TV's "People are Talking," as president of Boston's Chapter of the Cancer Control Society.

Thanks to twin clockmakers Jim and Dave Roberts, the town clock in the steeple of the Congregational Church was displaying the correct time on all four of its faces.

Denise McLaughlin was among the freshmen entering LaSalle in Newton.

Attic treasures

Kenneth Gloss of the Brattle Book Shop will speak to the Wilmington Women's club Thursday, October 21. See story this page.

Treasures in Your Attic October 21

Kenneth Gloss, proprietor of the nationally known Brattle Book Shop in Boston, will speak at a free and open lecture under the sponsorship of the Wilmington Women's Club at 1:30 p.m., on Thursday, October 21, at the United Methodist Church, Route 62, Wilmington.

Mr. Gloss' talk is entitled, "Treasures in Your Attic: Old and Rare Books." "New England homes are treasure troves for old and rare books that have increased in value over the years," says Gloss, "and we're inviting those attending to bring any volumes they want to know about to the lecture for a free verbal appraisal."

The Brattle Book Shop is the successor to America's oldest continuously operating antiquarian book store. Kenneth Gloss succeeded his late father, George Gloss, a well known figure both in Boston and in national antiquarian circles.

Kenneth Gloss had worked in the store since childhood and elected to go into the book business rather than pursue a doctorate in chemistry. He became the sold proprietor upon his father's death several years ago. "I found that books were in my blood and that I would never be really happy if I abandoned the business."

Kenneth Gloss is a member of the Antiquarian Booksellers Association of America, the New England Antiquarian Booksellers Association, the Bostonian Society and the Massachusetts and Rhode Island Antiquarian Booksellers. He serves as a member of the advisory board of the U.S.S. Constitution Museum and is a member of the advisory committee of the Boston Public Library.

Recently Kenneth Gloss was presented with an award by The Historic Neighborhoods Foundation for making a definitive contribution to the design and social heritage of Boston.

The Brattle Book Shop is also proud to have been a contributor to the WGBH Annual Auction each and every year that the station has held its fund drive.

Gloss will take to the lecture several examples of interesting books, magazines and ephemera from the store's private collection, such as a 1912 World Series scorecard and examples of old Life Magazines (He owns the complete set!)

Following the lecture and question and answer session, Gloss will give free verbal appraisals of those books and items that people take with them or will do so at any time at his 9 West Street emporium in Boston. For further information, please call the Brattle Book Shop at 1-800-447-9595.

The special family day at Stone Zoo marks the third year that Continental and Discovery have teamed up for an event to raise funds and encourage support for the revitalized zoo.

With the heavy rains on Sunday, we felt it was necessary to postpone the event until Sunday, Oct. 3," said Michael Leone, Continental's manager of government and public affairs. "We hope everyone who was planning to join us last Sunday, will come out and support the zoo next Sunday."

Highlighting the day's activities will be visits from television personality Rex Trailer; The Family Channel's Madeline and Peter Rabbit; drawings of children's favorite Disney characters by a Walt Disney Studios animation artist; the "Zoo Quest" educational game in which children win a "Stone Zoo Discovery Day" t-shirt if they ask a question at each of the five wildlife education stations; plus free animal masks, posters, prizes, animal demonstrations and much more.

The Harnden tradition

by Capt. Larz Neilson
Richard Harnden, born in England, settled in Reading, Mass., sometime about 1667. He took the "freeman's oath" on April 19, 1691. His wife was Mary, no surname given. They were married in Reading in 1666.

Reading, Massachusetts at that time was much larger than it is today. The northern part extended into the present Wilmington, to include much of the land northerly of Lubbers Brook and, it can be argued, nearly all the land that was in the Land of Nod - northerly of the present Salem Street, in the northerly part of Wilmington.

Reading also included all of what is today North Reading.

Wakefield was, in effect the center of Reading. The Wakefield Church of today was the Reading Church back before 1700 - at the southerly end of what is now Lake Quannipowit.

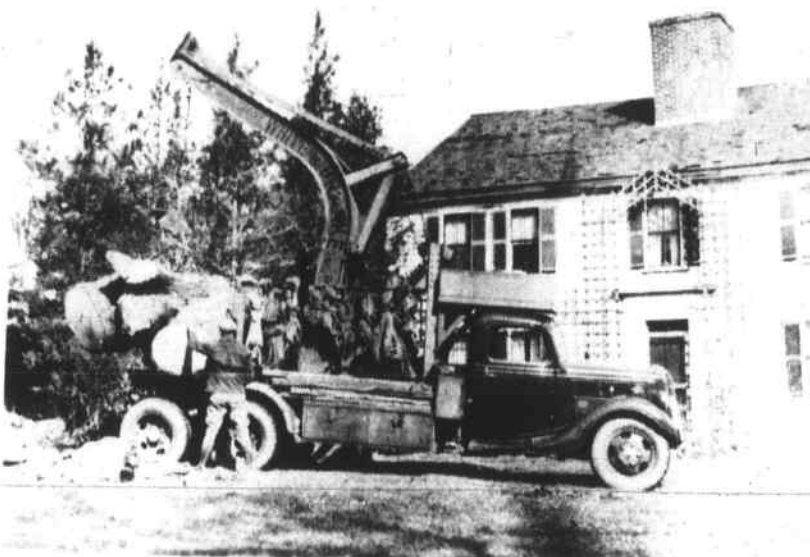

The site of the Richard Harnden home is the present site of the house at 67 High St., in Wilmington. The Harnden home, of course, faced to the south, as did all Colonial homes.

Richard Harnden, according to the former Wilmington town counsel Phillip Buzzell, was first settled in Virginia. But, Buzzell states, the first authentic record is of his settling in Providence, R.I. in 1645. Two years later, in 1647, he moved to Lynn, which at that time was a large community in area. Many years later Reading was set off from Lynn.

On Dec. 2, 1672 he was assigned 15 acres in Reading. Yet, in 1667, one year after his marriage in Reading, he had not been included with the householders of that town. It was to them that the proprietors voted all privileges of land and timbers, which to the commons should belong. The indication is, Buzzell held, that he had only designed to settle in Reading, and that he still lived, for many years afterwards, in Lynn.

On Sept. 25, 1682, he and his wife Mary sold, for fifty pounds sterling, 14 acres of land to Thomas

Harnden home

Constructed by John Harnden after the 1707 Massacre this was the Harnden home for several generations, located easterly from the original Richard Harnden Home. It was burned, in the late 1950s to make room for the new Route 93. Herb Barrows and his employees are shown as they got ready to cut up an elm tree, blown down by the 1938 hurricane.

Bancroft, and for five pounds sterling sold a lot of meadow land to Thomas Hodgdon.

Jenkins Bridge is in the area where the various brooks join together to become the Ipswich River. Jenkins Bridge was so named about 1711, but the bridge was constructed about 1657, on order of the legislature (Great and General Court). Andover had constructed a road to Boston, the "Andover Road." Today most of that road is named Woburn Street and Eames Street, the oldest road in Wilmington. Andover was first settled about 1639.

A Jenkins family bought land from the Harndens, and settled just north of the river, on the west side of the road, about 1711. Another early name for the area is the Laurens Carter Crossing. Members of the family of the Rev. Mr. Carter of Woburn had settled near the corner of Woburn Street and West Street at an early date.

John Harnden, the first to bear that name, son of Richard and Mary, was born in Reading in 1668, according to the records. He had married a woman named Susanna, and had constructed a home over a quarter of a mile southwest of the home of his parents. The site today is near the stone fence, northerly from the Woburn Street School. The home was about 15 or 20 feet to the north.

A cellar hole has been in existence for nearly 250 years, but it was filled in about 1960. There was a well, too, to the west, but that has also been filled in.

John Harnden was attending a church meeting on the night of May 12, 1707, in the present day Wakefield. A war party of Abnaki Indians, part of a larger group which had been raiding to the west, attacked his home, chopping a hole through the roof. Susanna and three of the children were killed.

One girl, Abigail, wounded in the back, was thrown into a nearby pond which is still in existence. She was rescued, and grew to womanhood. Other children, who had been carried off, were rescued by infuriated pursuers.

The children had hidden behind a large rock, near the present Marcia Road, and known today as "Indian" rock.

John Harnden married again, Sarah Sherman of Lynn Village (not Lynnfield). He built a home, downhill from the home of his parents, and on the easterly side of the Andover Road. It was owned nearly 250 years later by Herbert C. Barrows, and known as the Lopaus House. It was burned by the order of the Commonwealth, to make room for Route 93, then being constructed in the 50's.

The ancient story of the Harnden Massacre said that it was to revenge the death of a drunken Indian squaw, said to have been lying in the roadway of Main Street, in the present day Wilmington, near the Woburn line. The site was near a small pond afterwards known as "Squaw Pond." That pond was filled in about 1950 when Route 38 was constructed.

The story is that it was a Harnden who had killed the squaw, with horse hooves or a wagon, as she laid in the road. Neither Richard nor John would have been near Woburn, at night, being residents of Reading.

Was there a Harnden living in what is now South Wilmington, near the ancient volcano? There are tales to that effect. They cannot be proven.

John, son of John and Susanna, was born in the "massacre" home April 25, 1703. He married Mary Jaquith of Woburn. She was born in what is now Wilmington, in the area known as Land of Goshen, off Aldrich Road.

They were married Dec. 13, 1727. They lived in the home constructed by the first John, downhill from the home of Richard and Mary.

Mary Jaquith Harnden knew the story of Capt. Kidd, as did most of the Colonials of that day. She adapted that story to the locale in which she lived. She told it, imaginatively, to her children.

Capt. Kidd, with a black slave, she said, had come from Boston by the Andover Road with a treasure, in an oxcart. It was hidden in a cave, about half a mile to the north, and ever since known as "Devil's Den." The slave had been slain, and left to "guard the treasure."

It was his duty to move that treasure, if any person should come near it. That tale has persisted for several centuries. This writer can recall at least two instances of a search by strangers, in recent years.

In the 1730's, at about the time that Wilmington became a town, the Harnden families began to increase in number. There were six male names, and five female, born to the Harnden families in 10 years.

Wilmington became a town, and Deacon John of Reading was one of the two deacons of the first church in Wilmington. He also was one of the first two teachers. It is sometimes difficult to trace the men, often with the same name.

Benjamin, who became Lt. Benjamin, was born Dec. 29, 1744 and died in Wilmington on Oct. 18, 1836. He was the son of John and Mary (Jaquith). He married Hannah Kidder of Tewksbury Dec. 9, 1766 and she died in Wilmington Feb. 22, 1839, aged 91 years.

It is from Lt. Benjamin and his brother Captain John that many trace their ancestry. John, born Feb. 1, 1734 to John and Mary Jaquith was the man who was the Lieutenant of the Wilmington Minutemen on Concord Day. He succeeded to the command of the company when Capt. Cadwallader Ford became the secret messenger of the patriots, because Paul Revere's role had become known to the British.

The company of Capt. John Harnden was one of three which had been stationed at Harvard College to protect that school after the battle of Lexington. Those companies were not named to participate in the Battle of Bunker Hill.

During the course of that battle all three companies were marched to Bunker Hill to reinforce the Yankees. The Reading company was first, the Chelmsford Company second, and the company of Capt. Harnden the third.

Capt. John's company arrived at the foot of Bunker Hill just as the Yankee line on top of the hill broke. The British Army pursued but when they saw that they were to encounter fresh Yankee soldiers the British decided there had been enough warfare for the day.

After the war one can read of Captain John, as he was called, being engaged in discussions with Andover officials, about the boundary lines between the two towns. It was not a simple discussion.

Asa Sheldon, he who wrote "Wilmington Farmer" tells of a visit from Capt. John while he had a broken leg. He also tells of meeting a descendant about 1850. The descendant was conductor of a horse drawn street car in Cambridge.

A descendant of Capt. John, named John, died in Wilmington in 1853, aged 86. There seems to be no record of the death of Captain John.

Two men were named Henry Harnden. A grandson of Joshua Hamden of the Harnden Tavern was probably born in the tavern Dec. 26, 1808. This Henry purchased the Thompson Farm, near Silver Lake in 1830. A century later it was known as Pop's Farm.

The Thompson farmhouse dated from 1795. There was a mill on the west side of Lubbers brook, near the road. The present barn may have been constructed by Henry. Harnden Street received its name from him.

The farm was much larger than that of Pop. It included Lubbers Brook for half a mile. The present Veranda Avenue and the present Miller Road were part of a straight line which was the northwest boundary.

Henry married Nov. 1, 1861, Emma Pearson of North Wilmington. A son, Jerusha, was born next year.

Records are sparse on the birth of the second Henry. It seems he was born in the old farmhouse of Richard, March 4, 1823. He had a sister, Helen who married James P.

Morton of Roxbury. Helen and James moved into a home on High Street. Henry married Mary Lightner of Roxbury in 1848. That couple moved out west, to Wisconsin.

At the beginning of the Civil War Henry was in the Second Wisconsin Cavalry. At the end of the war he was in command, a Lieutenant Colonel.

Confederate President Jefferson Davis, escaping from Richmond at the end of the Civil War, was captured by the Second Wisconsin, Lt. Colonel Henry Harnden commanding. It was an event which was not without drama.

The Second Wisconsin had been detailed in Georgia by General Wilson to capture Davis. A Michigan regiment had been detailed to guard the fords of the Savannah River. President Johnson, on May 2, offered a reward of $100,000 in gold for the capture of Davis.

The other regiment, on detail to guard the fords of the Savannah River left that duty to look for Davis. The Michigan colonel had the knowledge of the reward.

The two regiments clashed on May 10. President Davis and his small party was between him. Several of the other regiment were killed by the Wisconsin troopers, who believed they were fighting Confederates.

The Colonel commanding the other regiment left, as soon as he knew Davis had been captured, and went to Washington DC to claim the reward. Harnden and the Wisconsin regiment continued on their assigned duties.

It was not until several days later that the men of the Second Wisconsin heard of the reward. It had already been claimed by the other regiment.

The facts resulted in a second reward of $100,000 in gold, for the Second Wisconsin. President Davis was put in prison, and Colonel Harnden returned to Wisconsin. He was afterwards promoted to General.

General Henry Harnden was a grandson of Lieutenant Benjamin Harnden. Phillip Buzzell recorded that two brothers and 13 nephews of the General had fought in the Civil War.

The Wilmington records do not make this clear. But there was a brother named Everell, a shoemaker, who lived in the home that is now 40 High Street. His wife was Julia Clemons of Andover, born in Deerfield. There were several children. Annie M. Harnden, of that family, is recorded as marrying Frank M. Foster of Tewksbury December 23, 1880.

General Henry Harnden died in Madison, Wisconsin May 17, 1900, 77 years old, a grandson of Lieutenant Benjamin Harnden and son of Jonathan Harnden, all born in Wilmington.

He wrote an account of the capture of Jefferson Davis, which was printed in Madison, Wisconsin in 1898.

Robert Harnden of Memphis, Tennessee visited Wilmington this week to see the Harnden lands. He is shown with the publisher of the Town Crier.

A monument to Hanna Dustin

by Capt. Larz Neilson
The Abnaki Indians, who made the attack on the home of John Harnden, were responsible for many attacks on the early English settlers. The one which is probably best remembered was that which occurred in Haverhill in March 1697. Hannah Dustin was the heroine of that event.

Hannah had recently become a mother, and was still recovering from that event when the attack took place. Hannah, the baby, and a woman who was her nurse were taken prisoners by the Abnaki and carried off. It was a journey which lasted nearly a month.

Hannah and the nurse were sleeping by the fireside one night. The Indians who were on guard also fell asleep. Hannah and the nurse arose silently and attacked the Abnakis with hatchets. All were killed.

Hannah then scalped the dead Indians, five in number. She took the scalps home. The Colonial legislature paid her a bounty of five pounds for each scalp.

Hannah Dustin collected a total of 25 pounds for her night's work. It was an event which has kept the memory of Hannah Dustin alive through the centuries.

There is a statue in Haverhill reminding the world of that event.

A well-known landmark

by Capt. Larz Neilson
A well known landmark in North Wilmington is the Harnden Tavern, for many years the property of Joshua Harnden, son of John and Mary (Jaquith). He as the brother of Capt. John, Lt. Benjamin, and of Joseph who was killed in Cambridge while serving against the British Army, Dec. 24, 1775.

Joshua, a Sargent in the militia, marched on Concord Day. He remained in the militia, and eventually became a colonel, about 1790. Joshua died in 1807, and his wife, Sarah Cornell in 1816.

It was in the years before the Civil War that the Harnden Tavern acquired the reputation of being an "underground railroad station." That railroad existed for the purpose of smuggling escaped slaves northward into Canada.

The story of only one such slave can be authenticated, but there were probably more. Participants in the underground railroad did not openly boast about their work.

Visitors today are shown a spacious area behind the woodwork and about the main fireplace, and told that it existed for the purpose of hiding the slaves. That area existed so that the wood did not become overheated from the heat of the chimney.

Wilmington Adult Softball

Charles River Labs charges back, 10-9

Industrial League
Charles River Labs 10
Diamond Crystal 9

This close and dramatic game was decided in the final inning when a controversial call ended it to put one of the teams into the loser's bracket in the Industrial League playoffs of the Wilmington Adult Softball League.

With Diamond Crystal making a comeback with two runners already scoring and the bases loaded for Joe Lima, it looked as if all the momentum was heading in the Diamond Crystal direction.

Lima then stroked what he thought would be an extra base hit before centerfielder Steve Fuller came out of nowhere to make the diving catch right before it reached the ground to end the Crystal threat and keep Charles River undefeated throughout the playoffs.

Koch Membrane 12

It was all the Cable Company as they struck for 17 runs, which included Don Sherwood and Gerry O'Reilly combining on three homeruns, with Sherwood the only one leaving the yard and eight RBI's.

Unfortunately, this sent Rich Powell and Carlos Fagandes home after they both had three hits each for the losing cause.

Analog 20
Charles River 18

Charles River made it interesting as they had a solid comeback after trailing by 13 in the fifth inning.

Joe LaCoste and Bob German helped Analog jump out to the 13 run lead with three RBI's each for the 20-7 lead.

But, Charles River went out without giving up, as Steven Fuller had a perfect 5-5 night while teammate John Parker had four hits of his own, but that was not enough to take the first place Analog Devils.

Standard Electric 14
Kevin Microwave 0

Standard Electric threw blanks at Kelvin which sent them home and Standard Electric going as they won this one 14-0.

Fred Foresguard led the attack, hitting for the cycle and driving in four runners.

Diamond Crystal 10

With Diamond Crystal leading by one run in the seventh, it looked like Cablevision was going down again to the Crystal Company.

But, a great comeback displays why Continental finished where they did as Mike Rondeau, Mark Anarian and Gerry O'Reilly each singled with the latter driving in the winner to keep Cablevision rolling.

Analog Devices 12
Standard Electric 8

Analog quickly demolished the chance of Standard Electric pulling off an upset as they took them by a score of 12-8.

Al Rosenheiser ws 3-3 with two rbis while Bob German and Jeff Vardera combined for four hits to help Analog win in the early stages of the playoffs.

Diamond Crystal 16

In the first meeting of the two teams, Diamond Crystal was all over the second place Cablevision Company as Lynn Taglianeri helped to lead the attack with the three-run inside the park homerun to cap off a great night in the upset.

Joe Lima, Chuck Van Reisen and Mike Boucher combined for 10 hits to help Diamond Crystal win.

Kevin Microwave 21
Dynamics Research 19

In this extremely long, interesting and mostly dramatic game, Kelvin Microwave took the upset in extra innings.

With Kelvin leading 18-13 going to the bottom of the seventh, they thought they had it all wrapped up until Mike Onessimo hit a three-run inside the park homerun to tie the game up and send it to extra innings.

Both teams went scoreless in the eighth, but Mario Auciello drove in a run to top the three run lead which fortunately, was enough to hold DRC and eliminate them from the playoffs.

Open League Playoffs
Wilmington Redem Cnter 14
JBT 13

With JBT leading throughout the game, the Redemption Center and Bill Lawson decided to get the offense going to overcome a loss and keep the defending champs and this year's first place team alive.

With two outs in the bottom of the sixth and down by two runs, Lawson tripled home Sean Keogan and Brian Surette to take the one run lead and eliminate JBT from further play.

Cushing/Robarge Club 9
Mercuri 6

The Cushing/Robarge team combined for their third straight win that sent them to the finals as they beat up Mercuri's, 9-6.

John Palmer led the see-saw game with three hits, while Bryon Kincaid delivered two big RBI hits to help them post another win.

Ray Mercuri played a great game with some great catches in leftfield and three hits.

A/S 16 Pote 3

It was all A/S as they eliminated the rejuvenated Pote's team. Jay Barrett, John Cushing, Mike Woods and Ernie Peabody each had two hits in the slugfest.

Over 35 League
Charlie's Auto Body 10
McTire 5

Charlie's Auto Body struck early and fast as they took advantage of McTire's miscues and took them 10-5.

Register your docks before it's too late

by Bill Conlon
Last year you were warned, and the hammer falls on Monday.

If you haven't licensed your dock by now, you've almost run out of time.

Owners of any dock, wharf, seawall and waterfront filled-in land were warned last July 30 in this space, and the amnesty period runs out Monday.

The regulations affecting docks and any other waterfront structures that might affect public navigation have been on the books since the 1800s. Updated regulations were passed in 1990 to put some teeth into those regs, with a one-year grace period given. You've always had to license your dock or seawall, but now the state means it!

The pre-1990 regulations had no license charge for freshwater docks and structures, if the structure was built before 1984. Salt-water docks always had to pay a license fee. The old regs expire Monday, hence the rush to license. As of Monday, all structures have to pay the licensing fee, fresh and salt.

Under the old regulations, a dock license cost $2 per square foot, and was good for 99 years. So, a salt-water dock of three by 21 feet, or 63 square feet, would cost $124 but the license would still be good when the great-grandchildren start to fish.

Freshwater docks built prior to 1984 received a license at no cost. But not after Monday.

Now, a license for any dock will cost $1 per square yard, times the term of the license, which is 30 years, plus a $100 administrative fee.

So, take that same dock, which is 7 square yards in area, times a buck a yard, then multiply that by the 30 year term of the license, for a fee of $210. Add the $100 admin fee and you're now paying $310 for a small dock, even on your friendly local pond in Massachusetts. Ouch!

Once again, if your dock went in before 1984, it will only cost you for the $100 licensing fee if you act by Monday. (Anybody care to bet how many docks just got older than 1984?)

Register the dock license with the Registry of Deeds and you're set. (There is no need to hang a license on the dock itself.)

The Monday deadline is the end of the "amnesty" period, which lets people get proper licenses for their docks under the old regulations. If you act before Monday, your freshwater dock will cost you only the $100 admin fee, and the license will be good for 99 years.

Now, what about the hammer?

Enforcement of the dock license regulations will be handled by the state Department of Environmental Protection, or DEP.

The DEP is a regular "player" in the state's environmental affairs, as all work done in or near wetlands is registered with DEP. However, the DEP is chronically understaffed.

While DEP will be doing a few spot checks to look for compliance with the dock regulations, they will also accept complaints. If they ask for your dock license, you'd better be able to point them toward the registry of deeds, or there might be some nasty fines coming down.

Harbormasters, the local police, a grumpy neighbor -- anyone will be allowed to blow the whistle on an unregistered dock.

For further information, call the Waterways Regulation Program at the Mass. DEP at (617) 292-5777. You could write to the DEP at One Winter St., Boston, 02114, but you really don't have enough time.

Get your dock licensed no later than Monday, or you could get face some ugly fines on Tuesday!

Soccer coaching course postponed

The "F" License soccer coaching course scheduled for October 3, 1993 at the Shawsheen Elementary School has been postponed. The instructor has requested that Wilmington Youth Soccer have 20 in attendance to make the course successful. The Wilmington Youth Soccer Association will try again tentatively for October 17 to present the coaching course run by the Mass. Youth Soccer Association.

The "F" License course is an eight hour course that covers design of a practice, team management, and goal keeping. It is geared to the first time or seasoned coach coaching the U8, U10, U12 age players. A fee of $40 will be charged, with the Wilmington Youth Soccer Association covering 50 percent of the cost for Wilmington coaches. A manual will also be provided to each coach.

In order to take the higher "E" License course, the "F" License is a prerequisite. WYS plans to run an "E" License course in November. The course runs for eight hours. It covers team management, design of a practice, player placement and responsibilities, and laws of the game. It is geared to seasoned coaches coaching U12, U14, or U16 age players. Any coaches interested in taking an "E" License course in November must have an "F" license.

Individuals interested in either the "F" License or "E" License coaching courses should contact John Daisy at 658-4524.

Lou collects kitchen items

Culinary Guru

By KEN MAGUIRE

One of these days, Zelma Greenstein is going to blow her stack. Her husband Lou has been bringing home every kind of kitchen artifact imaginable for the last 20 years, creating one of the most impressive collections in the country.

It spans from paper to cast iron. Nothing is excluded. If it was ever part of a kitchen, then it's now part of the collection.

The problem with this unusual hobby of Lou's is space. Eight years ago they moved from Martin's Pond in North Reading to their present home, just a few miles away. They needed more space to house the ever-growing collection, which is highlighted by 6,000 cookbooks, hundreds of meat grinders, egg beaters and countless other kitchen items.

"A lot of people focus on one type of thing for a collection," said Lou as he explained why any human being would want a cabinet full of can openers in their home. "I really got involved with the whole concept of culinary."

"There's a whole art culture in any particular area," he continued. "For instance, an insignificant item like a can opener has a tremendous representation going back to the early 1800s and even prior to that. I was not comfortable working with just one little area."

Greenstein's attitude on collecting also applies to his professional career. His resume includes his current positions: Epicurean Consultant to several restaurants and corporate clients; and Director of Auxiliary Services for New Hampshire College. But those are just appetizers.

He recently authored a book titled "A La Carte: A Tour of Dining History." It features his collected menus from the 1800s to the 1960s, along with commentary on each. The menus range from European restaurants (Savoy in London, circa 1923), to famous hotels (Boston's posh Parker House in 1860), to steamships and political dinners.

In addition, he was a television chef for 14 years on "Good Day" and has since gone national with "Cookin' USA," a day-time cooking show on the Nashville Network. Every few months, he flies there for tapings, which supplies him with plenty of ammunition when dealing with Zelma's space complaints.

century kitchen, a kitchen from the 1920s, and two more, possibly from the 50s and 60s.

Greenstein says he has all the components to outfit each kitchen, although the local planning board probably would not find the idea too palatable. "I kid about this barn, but it's really not a joke," he said.

His goal is to keep the collection personalized, and as far

Anti-Diet Weight Loss The New Alternative

SUFFERING IS OPTIONAL.

If you have tried dieting in the past and failed, you are not alone. For many, diet is part of the problem, not its solution. Thin people don't want to eat more than they should. So how come you do? When you learn to think about food the way thin people do, then you will eat casually and controllably, just as they do.

Based on successful work with overeaters in therapy.

PREVIEW: To give you a full description of this effective solution to over-eating, we offer a full, two-hour preview at our offices. Admission is $10. Call early to reserve your place, as seating is extremely limited.

'Walk With Me' to fight Alzheimer's

With more than 130,000 people in Eastern and Central Massachusetts estimated to suffer from Alzheimer's Disease or a related disorder, the Alzheimer's Association of Eastern Massachusetts will sponsor the "1993 Memory Walk" on Sunday, October 3.

With the theme "Walk With Me," the Eastern Massachusetts chapter joins Association chapters across the country in the first national walk-a-thon to raise money to fight Alzheimer's disease and support local programs and services for people affected by Alzheimer's Disease, their caregivers and family members.

"We encourage all family members - adults, children, teens, grandparents - to walk with us to help support the fight against this devastating disease," said Debbie Mozes, Massachusetts Memory Walk Co-Chair. "By working together and raising much needed funds, we will eventually conquer Alzheimer's Disease."

The 10-K/6.2 mile Memory Walk will begin at Canal Park and will follow a scenic route along the Charles River Esplanade.

About The Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

"BOOK 'EM' IS THE WORD AT THE NEW BURLINGTON PUBLIC ... POLICE STATION - With work on Burlington's expanding public library proceeding ahead of schedule, Library Director Marcia Rich is counting on the library's contents being moved into its interim headquarters, the former police station, by mid-November, around which time the "library" will close for about three weeks.

Asbestos is being removed from both buildings, and the major drawback at the temporary facility is a shortage of study space.

The "new" library building could be completed any time between next September and its targeted opening date, November 1994.

To ease the transition between buildings, the library held a book sale which yielded about $2,000 and a smaller collection to transport.

READING BILLS CONVE-NIENCE STORE $383,000 - The Town of Reading is still waiting for some sign of payment from Cumberland Farms' insurance company for expenses incurred by Reading after last fall's gas spill which dumped thousands of gallons of gas near the town's water supply.

No payment has been made of a first bill for $145,864, sent in January.

The total bill includes a $113,000 request to pay Woburn for water usage after the spill which caused Reading to shut down its nine wells and buy water from the MWRA, Wakefield and Woburn; hire engineering firms for cleanup and monitoring of the wells; and arrange continuing monitoring of those wells.

Neither Cumberland Farms nor its insurance company has been available for comment.

MALDEN SUPER STAR HELD UP - With $200,000 worth of fire damage to repair, the construction of Malden's Star Market - a "flagship type store" - at 486 Broadway (Rte. 99) has been delayed.

The recent fire, apparently caused by a welder's torch coming too close to foam-type insulation, could be seen from as far away as New Hampshire.

Star was originally scheduled to open several months from now on the multi-acre Malden site.

WINCHESTER CELEBRATES A BIRTHDAY - There was no shortage of cameras recently at the Arthur Griffin Center for Photographic Art which was the site of a party for "photographer laureate of New England" Arthur Griffin in celebration of his 90th birthday.

For the next two months, "Arthur Griffin's Photographic Legacy," the exhibition of his work from 1933 to 1993, will be open at the downtown center to the general public for tours, talks and workshops.

WOBURN COURTS NEW JUDGE - Recently appointed by Governor William Weld, the Honorable Marie T. Buckley is now sitting on the Woburn District Court, which serves Woburn, Winchester, Reading, Burlington, Stoneham, Wilmington, and North Reading.

In private law practice when nominated by Weld, Buckley replaces retired Judge Louis J. Gonnella as associate justice of away from a cold, concrete museum as possible. By having the collection spread throughout his home - on walls, in closets, on shelves and in cabinets - and knowing the history of each piece, he is able to keep a "unique perspective" on it.

"With the true history of a specific item, you wind up with a piece of a lot of people," Greenstein said.

He recalled how his friend's grandmother specifically named him to take over her small collection of items, instead of selling it off or donating it to a museum.

"If it was going to be somewhere, she wanted it to be among this collection," Lou said. "That's what makes collecting special. The value in it is the history it's able to relate."

Greenstein also volunteers his time to lecturing in local schools, hoping to relate some of this history to young minds. He explains to kids that long ago people had no computers, no formal engineering courses and little technology, yet they still managed to develop their ideas.

"If you can get them excited about yesterday, that can open the doors for tomorrow," he said with conviction. "History is alive. It's not a dry subject."

Also included in his collection is a series of Cream of Wheat advertisements from old magazines. The works are from famous artists such as Thomas Hart Benton and N.C. Wyeth. Featured in all of them was Rastas, a black chef. With their racial tones, most if not all of those ads would never see print today.

"It really was a statement of the racial attitudes of this country, going from the turn of the century to today," Greenstein explained.

Lou enjoys talking about the "Magna Wonder Knife" of the 1920s. It was a bread slicer that people laughed at back then, but through his consulting he has seen a similar version in the development stages today. He said it is another example of how history repeats itself.

Zelma might say that history repeats itself every time Lou walks into a yard sale. More junk, she says, but perhaps another good find, says her jolly husband.

"You can still make wonderful finds at yard sales," Lou said. "For example, there's just nowhere to find a Bodine crucible coffee pot. I just happened to be going through some boxes one day."

The Bodine coffee pot, Greenstein said, is a highlight of his coffee pot collection, although another person could care less about it. "You can't place a value on it, yet it has no value to someone else," he explained.

If Lou Greenstein sounds like a kook, he is. The KOOKS (Collectors Of Old Kitchen Stuff) convention was held earlier this year in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. He would not miss it for the world. One of the benefits of collecting, he said, is meeting so many interesting and fun people along the way.

About 10 years ago, the Boston Globe got wind of Lou's expansive egg beater collection. A story was printed and shortly thereafter he received an odd telephone call. It was from a man named Don Thornton, who identified himself as an associate editor of the Hartford Current.

"He started querying me about egg beaters," Lou began. "He was very reserved. Once he realized that I did collect egg beaters, he said 'Phew, am I glad. I'm an egg beater collector too. I'm not the only weird person in the world.'"

The two became good friends over the years, and Don even persuaded Lou to write a column for the Current, which he did for three years. They met up again at the KOOKS convention where Thornton was the keynote speaker on egg beaters, as well he should be since he wrote a book on the subject, explained Lou.

Meeting Thornton and getting a newspaper column a decade ago was a perfect example of networking, which Lou says is another advantage to pursuing a hobby. It paid off again several years later during a trade show in Chicago.

While discussing his collection of reference material with a woman there, he learned that she was a book editor. He gave her his card and said goodbye.

Two years later, she telephoned, wanting to get started on what would turn out to be "A La Carte."

Included in Greenstein's "A La Carte" is the contract of his parents' wedding dinner. The per-person cost was a hefty $1.40. He said including it was a gesture that meant a lot to his mother and serves as a tribute to his late father.

The Greenstein's have two children, Rachel and Joshua. Lou kids that someday they will write his epitaph after a meat grinder with a mind of its own falls from the wall and kills him.

"They'll sell everything off after they bury me I guess," Lou joked. "Enough is enough, that will be my epitaph."

Divorce group for adults at NEMH

the Woburn Court. Although one local newspaper describes her as "the wife of ..." we'd say that law and order are more in order here when it comes to describing the Marie T. and John J. And that's this week's bench press report.

Polymnia Choral Society is looking for boy soprano

Polymnia Choral Society's concertized production of Gian-Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors" will provide an opportunity for a boy soprano to play the role of Amahl. Auditions will be held on Saturday, October 2, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 70 West Emerson Street, Melrose.

"Amahl" is a heartwarming Christmas story featuring a handicapped boy's experience of love and hope in his encounter with the three kings as they sojourned at his home on their way to welcome the Christ child. "Amahl" was originally composed for NBC-TV Opera Theater as a Hallmark production in 1951. Polymnia will present "Amahl" on December 3 and 4 at the First Congregational Church in Melrose.

Last spring Polymnia's desire to encourage students' interest in music was evident in the "Art for the Mikado" contest they sponsored for area elementary and middle school children in conjunction with the chorus' production of "The Mikado." Polymnia's performance of "Amahl" goes a step further by providing a role for a young boy. Chorus President Jamie Horne noted, "This is the first time Polymnia has featured a starring role for a child. We're excited about branching out in this direction not only to foster development of young talent but also to include in our program an operetta of special interest to children."

Polymnia, a 60-voice ensemble, is directed by James Reyes of Melrose, Assistant Professor of Composition at Berklee College of Music. Reyes and members of the chorus are happy to welcome back Paul Ciano of Lynnfield as artistic director of "Amahl" after his successful assistance in that role in the "Mikado."

For more information or to schedule an audition, please call James Reyes, (617) 662-0985.

Breastfeeding is LeLeche topic

Many options are open to parents today in the Family-Centered Maternity Care programs in area hospitals. How will the arrival of a new baby affect relationships as a couple and as a family?

These topics will be explored Tuesday, October 5, when La Leche League of Burlington meets to discuss "At Home with Your New Baby" at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Nancy McElroy, 181 Central St., Stoneham. Women from surrounding towns are invited to attend.

This meeting is the second in the current series of four monthly meetings open to nursing mothers and their babies, as well as pregnant and other interested women. The discussion is informal, with opportunity to ask questions and share experiences.

Squaw-ters rights

WINCHESTER DEBATES SQUAW-TERS RIGHTS - An in-school debate on the appropriateness of using Squaw Sachem as a Winchester school mascot has sparked a similar debate among School Committee members.

Some say the Sachem symbol is "cool" and inoffensive, a tribute to stories that are part of Winchester's history, a history with its roots in peace. The design appears on an outside wall of Winchester High and a mural of Squaw Sachem holds a place of honor in the Winchester Public Library.

Some say the root of the problem is the caricature of the logo on the T-shirts at last year's senior all-night graduation party; and some that if anyone perceives that the mascot - now associated with all the good sports in the Town of Winchester - is an insult, then anyone's perception is all that matters.

Some have called for the launching of an investigation.

Some say the issue could get blown out of proportion. Everyone has reservations.

It is probably politically insensitive, incorrect, and fool-

WEEKEND COLLEGE AT BUNKER HILL

A Weekend College will be inaugurated at Bunker Hill Community College in Boston (BHCC) starting October 2.

The classes will be held Saturday mornings or afternoons, or, in some cases, all day.

Students may register by mail-in, phone-in or Fax-in. Financial Aid is available to those who are eligible. For more information, call (617) 241-8600, Ext. 448.

hardy to note that given this current Middlesex East crisis, the Reading Rockets may be safe but Stoneham Spartans and Woburn Tanners had better beware. And as Halloween approaches, a Devils-could-care attitude might surface in Burlington.

It is probably politically insensitive to note that. So don't laugh.

BURLINGTON APPROVES $1.8 MILLION FOR SCHOOLS

Burlington Town Meeting has voted to transfer $20,000 from free cash so the school department can fund an architect's design study which could lead to a $1.8 million project.

After a year-long intense study, that's the estimate by the New England School Development Council and Burlington's Facilities Study Committee, of the cost of adding six classrooms to the Memorial School and six-and-a-half classrooms to the Wildwood School.

After much Town Meeting discussion, the $20,000 was voted and according to Superintendent of Schools Robert Neely, the present plan is the most "cost-effective."

NESEC reps' estimate that Burlington's school enrollment could increase by 400 by the year 2000.

NORTH READING LOSES 450 YEARS OF EXPERIENCE BUT NOT ITS SEASONED SUPERINTENDENT

With 15 teachers retiring, 11 of them earlier than expected, North Reading schools are feeling the effects of the vote at a special mid-July town meeting which authorized application to the state's early retirement program. North Reading teachers first believed they were eligible for 12 to 14 early retirement slots, then thought they would be lucky to be offered 5.6, and actually were awarded 11 - because Boston teachers did not use all the slots set aside for them.

The latest retirees are: Director of Pupil Personnel Services David Powers, high school English teacher Fred Keyes, middle school teacher Norma Stiles, and high school science department chairman Jerry Donovan.

Those declared eligible earlier in the year are: Patricia Parrot, Fay Bell, Anna Reel, George McGurn, Frank Hughes, Barbara Kinnie, and Beverly Sampson.

Those who were retiring anyway are: Harold Weisse, Ruth Goldberg, Vivi-Ann Vorrilas, and Larry O'Brien.

According to the North Reading "Transcript," Superintendent of Schools Francis X. O'Donoghue did not go for the program because "he felt it would be inappropriate for him to preempt one of the slots which went to a local teacher."

ANTHONY MANCONI

A dog may be a man's best friend but some mailmen have their doubts. When Charlie Mullen, a Winchester letter carrier, asked a man sitting on his front steps, "Does your dog bite?" the answer was "No, my dog does not bite." So, Charlie climbed up the stairs and the dog took a nip of his ankle. Charlie shouted, "I thought you said your dog doesn't bite!" The man smiled and said, "That's not my dog."

My late Uncle John Shea of North Reading was the hiring foreman on the piers and docks of Charlestown's waterfront. It was well known that he would hire only Irishmen as longshoremen. One morning a young chap approached him for a job. "Are you Irish?" Uncle John belatedly. "No," the nervous young man stammered, "but my grandmother is Irish, sir." "Very good. Tell your grandmother to report to Pier 7 at 5 in the morning."

When Mario DiMino was told by the union steward that the workers were going on strike for "shorter hours" he replied, "Good, I always thought that 60 minutes was 'too long'."

I asked Kenny Binding of Winchester, "How is your new secretary, Kenny?" "Very good except her punctuation is very bad." "I know what you mean," I replied, "mine is always late too." "Folks, permit me to boast a little. Woodchips has a fan in Yarmouthport. His name is James McCorry whose sister, a retired school teacher from Wilmington, sends him the column every week. Jimmy then sends Woodchips to a friend in Modena, Italy who then sends it to his brother in San Matteo, California. I showed Jim McCorry's letter to my Aunt Nora and she said, "There was a time when only the family knew that you were nuts, Woodchips."

Tony Stack went on a bus tour of Dublin, Ireland. The guide was pointing out various places of interest as they went along. "We are now about to pass the biggest brewery in Ireland," the guide said. "That's what you think!" Tony shouted as he jumped up to ring the bell for the bus driver to stop and let him get off... After a night out with the boys at my favorite pub I said to Kathy when I got home, "A few drinks, dear, makes you look wonderful." "Why you idiot," she shouted, "I haven't been drinking!" I smiled and said, "No, but I have." She pushed me out the door and I slept with my Labrador Retriever on the porch until the next morning and a week thereafter. I may apologize today, my dog snores.

A lawyer's wife was complaining about the shabbiness of their home. She shouted, "This furniture is old, the drapes are a mess and the carpets are worn out." The "legal beagle" replied, "Don't worry about it another minute, dear. I just got a divorce case today. I'll finish breaking up their home in about two weeks then we'll start fixing up ours."

In geometry class, Mario DiMino of Stoneham couldn't find the distance between two points so when he graduated he became a "taxi driver." My cousin Danny fell off a staging on a construction job. He sued the company for $2 million because he claimed he couldn't raise his right arm above his shoulder and therefore couldn't work as a carpenter. The judge sympathized with Danny and was about to award him the money. The judge, as an afterthought, asked Dan, "How high could you raise your right arm before this unfortunate injury?" Danny jumped up from his seat and, raising his right arm high above his head, shouted, "A-way up here, your Honor!"

Charles Kuralt of "On the Road with Charles Kuralt" fame said, "Thanks to the interstate highway system, it is now possible to travel from coast to coast without seeing anything." My friend, Paul Travers of Burlington, will marry the beautiful Joanne Senecal in December. I recommend a "double ring" ceremony, Paul, like mine was - get married standing in the bathtub.

Bob Burns of the Woburn Elks said to me, "Chipper, I never tell anyone how great and wonderful I am. I let them find that out for themselves." (I like a humble person.) Some Boston motorists follow this rule, "Red light - Stop; Yellow light - Floor it; Green light - Proceed with extreme caution."

Joe Ravidia of Revere finally found a house in his price range but the dog wouldn't move out of it... Paul Simon said, "Chipper, I learned my virtues at my mother's knees. My vices at other joints." Pharmacists Stephen Rappa of Saugus and Jimmy Fanicos of Melrose have perfected a mixture of gasoline and castor oil that makes an old clunker of a car, G-o-o faster.

I think they're going to build an Elephant House at the Stone Zoo. I saw a telephone crew getting ready to install a "trunk line" there... My Aunt Nora just read that and ran into the kitchen shouting, "I told you, Kathy, he's NUTS!" Jimmy Quinno of Woburn said, "Anyone who goes to a psychiatrist ought to have his head examined."

I love the Samuel Goldwyn sayings. (He is the one in the middle of Metro Goldwyn Mayer Hollywood Movie Producers.) Anyway here are a few - "Was that you who was drowned last year or was it your brother?" - "When I want your opinion, I'll give it to you." - "We're overpaying Clark Gable but he's worth it." - "For your information, I would like to ask a question." and "A verbal contract isn't worth the paper it's written on."... Folks, success is relative - the more success, the more relatives. Dreamboats: Gina Masotta, Woburn; Ellen Simpson, North Reading; Sheila Verrico, North Reading; Jean Pesaresi, York Beach, Maine; Pamela MacKill, Saugus; Lisa Ferrari, Somerville.

"Summer Farewell"

The days and months have swiftly passed
And soon we'll feel the wintry blast.
Where once the rows of corn did grow,
Nature will sow her crop of snow.

Robins have come and said goodbye,
At night I've seen the geese fly high.
A harvest moon looks down below,
Guarding a trout stream's gentle flow.

It's Nature's way to tell us all
To listen for her clarion call.
The time has come for us to know,
That Summer's gone, with all its glow.

Have hope - for Summer will come again
For time like wheels will have no end.
Then geese and robins will say, "Hello"
And corn and flowers again will grow.

"The Good Son", Short Takes

"The Good Son" Starring Macaulay Culkin, Elijah Wood, Wendy Crewson. Directed by Joseph Ruben. Produced by Mary Anne Page and Ruben. Written by Ian McEwan. Rated R.

Macaulay Culkin, best known as the charismatic cutie in the "Home Alone" movies, finally has his chance to play the bad seed. His Henry Evans, who seems soooo nice on the outside, is a grisly, nasty little child. And Culkin rises to the occasion, turning in a picture perfect performance. Cigarettes dangling from cherubic-looking lips, his filthy mouthed pre-teen is completely lacking a soul.

Too bad this vehicle couldn't support Culkin's weight as an actor. Clocking in at about 90 minutes, the film is just too skimpy to build up the kind of tension needed to really get under our skin. It may want to be that creepy exercise on the existence of evil, 1956's "The Bad Seed," but it is much too shallow.

When Henry's cousin Mark (Elijah Wood) is dropped off at his uncle's house for a visit following the death of Mark's beloved mother, Henry appears in a ghoulish papier-mache mask. The next day Henry shows Mark his secret shed, where the boys are greeted by a ghoulish doll hanging from a noose. Henry has a "toy" to show his cousin. It's a kind of cross bow, rigged out of junk, but perfectly functional.

Henry immediately displays his cruel nature, but only to his cousin and occasionally to his younger sister (played by Culkin's own younger sister, Quinn). At first, little Mark, a trusting and confused kid, believes the "accidents" that occur around Henry are just that. But we know differently, and it doesn't take Mark long to catch on. All the adults in the story, however, are thick as stones.

As there is so little subtlety - Henry's actions are pretty darn bold right from the onset - it quickly becomes ridiculous when no one else notices his disturbed behavior. Sure, Henry is bright and charming and his parents obviously hear what they want to. But as his crimes begin to pile up, no one notices, or even investigates. It is more than a small oversight that when the boys are on the scene of a major collision there is not even a cursory police investigation.

It is this sort of non-logic in Ian McEwan's script that warms up this chiller as it destroys the story's inherent logic. The audience can't have much imperative to watch if the script can't play by its own rules.

The film does retain a certain curiosity factor, as a large chunk of it was filmed on Cape Ann.

David Morse gives credibility to his small part as Mark's father and Wendy Crewson does a commendable job at not sensing her son's rotten psyche. But her character, along with all the others in this intellectual waste land, needed to be more than just surface deep.

investigating a serial killer. The murders begin again two years later when he's been busted to river patrol and teamed with (gasp) a female partner, Sarah Jessica Parker. Except for the performances and a couple of thrilling chase scenes, this is very movie-of-the-week. Rated R.

The Secret Garden is the best, most magical adaptation to date of Frances Hodgson Burnett's delightful children's book. Kate Maberly is the spoiled orphan shipped to England as the ward of a cold uncle who runs a strange, unhappy household. Digging in a locked up garden, Mary begins a healing process that reunited her dysfunctional, somewhat twisted family with each other - and reality. Quite beautifully made. Rated G. ***1/2
